

FOREWORD

On 31 August 2019, Professor Otlhogile retired from the Department of Law, University of Botswana after serving the University for 37 years in different capacities in teaching, research and leadership. During this period, he contributed immensely to the growth and development of the legal profession in Botswana and in Africa at large. Prof Otlhogile's research interests were on all aspects of constitutional law and legal history. He also contributed in the teaching of other areas of law, including Law of Delict, Customary law, Law of Succession, and Roman Law. In honouring his contribution to the legal profession and his passion for academia, the Department of Law has dedicated a special issue of the journal to this cause. This special issue has contributions from the academia, the civic society and the legal profession at large.
